SNOWY TAIL A CHAMPION JACK RABBIT

THOMAS CLARK HINKLE

Title: Snowy Tail A Champion Jack Rabbit

Author: Thomas Clark Hinkle; Illustrated by Milo Winter

Language: English

Subject: Fiction, Literature, Children's literature

Publisher: World Public Library Association

World Public Library

The World Public Library, www.WorldLibrary.net is an effort to preserve and disseminate classic works of literature, serials, bibliographies, dictionaries, encyclopedias, and other reference works in a number of languages and countries around the world. Our mission is to serve the public, aid students and educators by providing public access to the world's most complete collection of electronic books on-line as well as offer a variety of services and resources that support and strengthen the instructional programs of education, elementary through post baccalaureate studies.

This file was produced as part of the "eBook Campaign" to promote literacy, accessibility, and enhanced reading. Authors, publishers, libraries and technologists unite to expand reading with eBooks.

Support online literacy by becoming a member of the World Public Library, http://www.WorldLibrary.net/Join.htm.

www.worldlibrary.net

This eBook has certain copyright implications you should read.

This book is copyrighted by the World Public Library. With permission copies may be distributed so long as such copies (1) are for your or others personal use only, and (2) are not distributed or used commercially. Prohibited distribution includes any service that offers this file for download or commercial distribution in any form, (See complete disclaimer http://worldLibrary.net/Copyrights.html).

World Public Library Association P.O. Box 22687 Honolulu, Hawaii 96823 info@WorldLibrary.net

SNOWY TAIL A CHAMPION JACK RABBIT

THOMAS CLARK HINKLE

Author of "Doctor Rabbit and Ki-yi Coyote," "Doctor Rabbit and Grumpy Bear," "Tiny Cottontail"

Pictures by MILO WINTER

RAND MCNALLY & COMPANY
CHICAGO NEW YORK

Copyright, 1921, by RAND MCNALLY & COMPANY Edition of 1934

SNOWY TAIL

Made in U.S. A.

"Now you sit just as still as can be"

SNOWY TAIL

SNOWY TAIL ALONE IN THE HOME NEST

It was a fine May morning in the Republican River Valley of Kansas. The sun had just peeped over the hills and was shining on a green hillside that sparkled with the dewdrops on thousands of grassy stems.

Not far below, the river flowed peacefully along murmuring to the many willows that seemed leaning over to listen to its song.

Had you looked up on the green hillside you would not have seen rabbit. His little big ears, although he kept them flat to his head, said as plain as could be, "I'm a real jack rabbit. I'm a very little one, to be sure, but I'm a real one. If I'd happen to run from something you'd soon see"!

SNOWY TAIL

almost, but not quite as still as a statue, for his little nose was wobbling eyer so fast.

Snowy Tail was alone in the home nest. Once there had been a big family in the nest, but now there was only Mammy White

A CHAMPION JACK RABBIT

10 SNOWY TAIL	A CHAMPION JACK RABBIT 11
Tail and Snowy Tail. Only the	Snowy Tail, "Now you sit just night before old Ki-yi Coyote's	as still as still can be in the nest.
brother Crafty had come creep-	I must find a new home. Sooner ing down the hillside. The	or later that sneaking coyote is wind, blowing gently from the	sure to come back and find us.
valley up the hill, told him that	You are the only one I have now there were rabbits near by. Poor	and you must be as careful as Mammy White Tail did all she	you can. Sit still. Don't move could. She stayed right with her	a bit of you except your nose.
little rabbits, but at last she told	You may always wobble that as them all to run and started off	much as you like. I shall come herself. But only Mammy and	back soon."
Snowy Tail got away. Snowy	And that's why Snowy Tail sat was larger and stronger than his	so still and looked down the little brother and sister rabbits	grassy hillside. But he was grow-and he got away so quickly old	ing restless. To be sure he wob-
Crafty Coyote never saw him.	bled his nose; that helped a little.
Quite early this morning	My, but how he wished Mammy
Mammy White Tail had said to	White Tail would hurry!

13

Snowy Tail waited quietly. The broad grass blades about the nest hid him completely but in front was a little opening through which he could peep out.

He saw a great big bumblebee drinking nectar from the cup of a yellow toadflax flower. Snowy Tail watched the bee as it buzzed from one yellow flower to another and for a moment forgot his absent mother. All of a sudden he quit wobbling his nose and sat up. He had heard a noise on the hillside above him.

Standing on his little hind legs he peeped through the waving grass behind the nest.

Down the hill not far away came a coyote. It was Ki-yi's brother. He was moving slowly, sniffing the grass as he came on. Now and then he raised his head high and looked quickly in every direction. He was hunting for any small animal that might show itself, but his manner said plainly, "I smell rabbits."

As Snowy Tail watched, his heart beat—oh—so fast! Well he knew what old Crafty Coyote was searching for and he could see that he was headed straight down the hillside toward the nest.

SNOWY TAIL FORGETS HIS TROUBLES

Snowy Tail got as far back as he could in the little pocket and waited. And if he trembled a little, he certainly had reason to. Once or twice in a high jump old Crafty came so near that and fell on the little whitetail. But Snowy did n't move an ear nor even wobble his nose.

By and by the noise died away little pieces of stone and dirt were knocked off the tiny ledge and Snowy Tail dared peep out. He saw old Crafty far down the hillside making toward the river.

He saw old Crafty far down the hillside

This was a glad surprise and made Snowy Tail feel safe again. He slipped out of the little pocket and hopping back around the big bowlders soon came to the nest where his mother had left him. From here he looked out again and saw the last of old Crafty Coyote as he pushed in among some sumac bushes and disappeared. Of course, he might come sneaking back up the hillside any minute, so Snowy Tail was very impatient for Mammy to come. He was hungry, too. The grass around the nest was much too coarse and tough for food. He believed it would now be quite safe to hop out and get some of the tender grass he could see growing around one of the larger rocks. So he crept out of the nest and looked about him and listened. He stood upon his hind legs and peered about, but the only thing he saw or heard was a bumblebee drowsily buzzing from one flower to another.

Snowy Tail ate grass until he was no longer hungry. Then he was so happy he played hide and seek with himself around the biggest bowlder. He forgot all about Mammy White Tail and Crafty Coyote. It was very easy for Snowy Tail to forget his troubles. As he ran around the big rock he did n't keep his little big ears hard on her heels. Soft light

SNOWY TAIL

22 into sight. His nose was close

A CHAMPION JACK RABBIT 23

But something told Snowy Tail

gray was all that could be seen to the ground. He was running this way, then that, and sniffing, sniffing, as he ran. He was trailing some animal and did n't of him as he ran with his ears flat to his shoulders. All at once he stopped his play and looked toward the deep woods down along the river. Yes, surely he saw something moving down there. He looked again, hoping it was Mammy White Tail coming back. Why did n't she hurry anyway? Come to think cf it, it was hard to wait alone on the hillside without her.

find it an easy task to keep the trail in the tall grass. Now, really, it was a cold trail of Mammy White Tail. Slowly and surely, sniffing and sniffing, the hound came up the hill toward the nest.

WHITE TAIL
Sniff, sniff, on he came.

Nearer and nearer he sniffed his way to the nest into which Snowy Tail had crept.

Snowy Tail had crept.

Little Snowy Tail sat as still as a wee field mousie and kept his bright black eyes on the big, lumbering hound. He waited as lumbering hound. He waited as long as he dared. But now the dog was so close Snowy knew he must run or it would be too late.

So he darted out of the nest toward the biggest bowlder just as he had done when Crafty Coyote chased him. Snowy Tail easily got away. Snowy ran quickly into a thick bunch of grass. There he sat and slyly peeped out.

The hound came sniffing along the trail. Since he had been able to get away when the hound was almost upon him, Snowy Tail almost upon him, Snowy Tail decided to take a good start and run at once. He was tired of staying home alone anyway. So staying home alone anyway. So away he ran down the hill toward the woods along the

A CHAMPION JACK RABBIT 25

With a startled roar the big swift as Crafty Coyote and so toward the woods along the river where he had last seen his mother. Now, much to his surprise, he did n't hear the roar of the big hound. He heard only the swish, swish of the grass as he ran swiftly through it down the hillside. Snowy Tail did n't know that a trailhound never sees an animal he is trailing unless it springs right up under his nose. A hound is always so busy smelling the ground he never takes time to look about.

24

like a rush of wind in a wild storm until he came to the edge of the woods. The hound was still nosing patiently along the trail on the hillside. It would be easy to outdistance him now. So Snowy Tail pricked up his

Snowy Tail ran helter-skelter

The big hound came after him

I sprang into the woods and ran for my life. I did n't have time to pick my way and so I ran right into this brier patch. But anyway, I got in so far he could n't reach me and I'm not hurt. I got away; that's enough for me. And now we'll just slip away to the nest I've made. You must keep your eyes and we never know when Crafty Covote might come back." And away Mammy White Tail hopped with Snowy Tail follow-ears wide open. I see that foolish hound still sniffing round our old nest on the hillside, and ing. Snowy was sure they should much faster than Mammy was going, not because he was afraid but because he felt so much like running. But he stayed dutifully at Mammy's heels and watched and listened just as she had told him to do.

SNOWY TAIL

30

A CHAMPION JACK RABBIT 31

MAMMY PLAYS A TRICK ON OLD JORDAN'S HOUNDS

Mammy White Tail ran a little way along the edge of the woods with Snowy Tail following very close behind. Snowy kept his round black eyes wide open and was ready, always ready, to run like lightning if Crafty Coyote came after them.

On and on went Mammy White Tail until finally she turned off across the prairie toward Hickory Hollow ravine. Snowy Tail did not ask any questions. He just followed.

All went well until they neared Hickory Hollow. Then suddenly around the bend of the ravine they saw old Jordan with his two greyhounds. Instantly Mammy White Tail stopped and crouched close to the ground. Her great ears lay flat to her shoulders, and with nothing but the gray of her back showing it was not easy to see her.

Snowy Tail wasn't told what to do; he knew. He did what Mammy did. Right behind her he crouched, his little big ears flat to his shoulders.

On came old Jordan and his two big hounds. It was a bad moment for the two rabbits and ther down, where her course led directly toward the hounds!

"Hi! Yi! Yi!" Old Jordan yelled loudly for fear his hounds might not see. "There's that whitetail again!" he shouted. The hounds saw and raced away like blue-gray streaks, old Jordan following as fast as he could.

do differently, but Mammy, the mother of Snowy Tail, was a whitetail.

Mammy knew just what she was going to do when she began to run. She turned at the ravine and ran along the long shelving bank until she came to a sharp point. There the hill to the right jutted out so there to see. Come! Let's go to the new nest."

And away hopped Mammy with Snowy Tail following her. On and on Mammy went until they came to another hill. Here Snowy Tail saw a great many huge round rocks scattered over the hillside. He was glad, because he knew they'd offer him a splendid chance to get away from enemies. Mammy knew he might need these big bowlders any minute.

SNOWY THINKS THE BIG WORLD QUEER

Mammy White Tail led Snowy Tail to the snuggest of snug nests. It was in a bunch of dense grass and was large enough for both of them. A spreading green sumac grew just back of it.

"Now," said Mammy, "we can sit here and see out on every side of us. And old Coyote lives so far from here it's not likely he'll find us. But we must not forget to watch out for him."

Suddenly Mammy White Tail reached down and rubbed Snowy Tail's little nose with her nose, Mammy, smiling as she looked up at him.

"Nothing, only a little rabbit in the water. It frightened me at first." Snowy Tail explained. The big world was so very queer, but the next time he looked into the spring he was n't a bit surprised. He knew now that when he drank from the pool he'd always see a little jack rabbit with big ears in the water, and when Mammy drank, if he looked over her shoulder, he'd always see a big rabbit just like her in the crystal pool.

SNOWY TAIL BREAKS HIS PROMISE

When Mammy White Tail makes a nest she likes to know all about everything around it. She believed she had chosen a good place but she wished to make sure of it. "Stay right in the nest," she told Snowy Tail. "unless something frightens you. Then use your legs just as you did before." And away she hopped to the top of the hill she wished to explore.

Snowy Tail promised with a flap of one ear and sat very still and very close to the ground.

A CHAMPION JACK RABBIT 45

danger was in sight. He hopped on over to the little spring and listened to the music of the tiny waterfall. It was a pleasing sound and he crept up to the 44

SNOWY TAIL

Anyway, although Snowy Tail had had two great adventures and was still dreadfully afraid of old

Crafty Coyote and the trailhound, he was eager for a new one.

little pool to take a drink. As he reached down he saw another little big-eared jack rabbit just like himself in the clear water. But that did n't bother him now. He just thought it great fun. He looked curiously down at the other jack rabbit's funny little nose and black eyes. Some crickets and beetles had hurried away as he came up, but he saw nothing to be afraid of. He looked down the hillside and across the valley. There was no sign of life down there except some crows cawing in a scrub oak at the bottom of the hill.

Snowy Tail felt so fine he kicked up his heels and ran

He saw another little jack rabbit once around the spring. Then he thumped the ground with his hind feet. It was his first thump and he astonished himself. It was a surprisingly loud thump for so small a rabbit.

He looked up the hillside and wondered why Mammy White Tail did not come back. He wondered, too, why she had gone up the hill. Mammy did n't always tell him why she was going away.

SNOWY TAIL ATTENDS A SURPRISE PARTY

The nest Mammy White Tail made at the edge of the woods was now Snowy Tail's home.

Of course he'd be glad when the time finally came to go out into the valley and live wherever he chose, but that good time had n't come yet.

The new nest was in dense meadow grass where some small bushes grew—just the right place for a jack rabbit nest. It was a lovely hiding place and Snowy Tail was delighted with it. But before he'd been in it long he

A CHAMPION JACK RABBIT

back home. No doubt the snake

51

50

SNOWY TAIL

began to grow restless, just as and looking around before he knew it. At first all went well had heard him as he came down and it seemed as if nothing Plunk, Plunk! on the ground. could happen. Then all at once Another jump and the frog he heard a rustling in the grass would be in the grass, then two until froggie jumped out into the open space near the gooseberry bush where he could pounce upon him.

The rattler did n't know Crafty was there. And neither did Crafty know anything about the big rattler under the gooseberry bush. So all of a sudden there were three very much surprised animals, but the one most surprised was the frog or three more and KERCHUG! he would land safe in the marsh. But between the grass and the marsh was the big rattler.

Snowy Tail stood still with fright. He could n't make a sound. He looked at the little green frog, then at the big rattler all coiled and waiting to spring.

Yes, he was all ready to spring when the little green frog should jump again.

But just then Snowy Tail heard a rustle and there, standing behind a tree, he saw Crafty Coyote. Crafty's head was turned to one side, and one ear was cocked up as he watched the oncoming froggie. He was waiting

HOW THE PARTY BROKE UP

Plunk! into the open space hopped unsuspecting froggie, no doubt delighted to be getting so near the friendly water of his beloved marsh. But the moment he landed, out sprang two enemies—the big rattler and Crafty Coyote.

It was a dreadful moment in froggie's life, but two enemies really proved to be much better than one. The rattlesnake was so surprised at seeing Crafty he missed the frog, and Crafty was so frightened at seeing the un-

"Plunk! plunk! plunk!---came a green frog made an end of me. But he anybody again. My, but I'm sorry I lost that frog! He was such a splendid, fat one. Now I'll just slip over and hide in the grass beside the marsh. Perhaps he'll be silly enough to hop out again."

Snowy Tail, who had seen all that had happened, crept quietly back to his nest

If wild animals could tell about these woodland and prairie battles, what capital stories they would spin! Snowy Tail was n't at all sorry Crafty had killed the rattler but now he wished very much Crafty himself would go away. Just then he heard a noise and saw Crafty leap out of the grass and seize a foolish frog that had jumped up out of the mud at the edge of the marsh. Then with the frog in his mouth, its limp legs "dangling down-O!" Crafty DID go away. He trotted along in the woods a little way, then turned quickly and loped up the hill. About halfway up he suddenly stood still. Snowy Tail saw another coyote come out of a hole in the hillside. Crafty dropped the frog. The other covote at once picked it up and disappeared in the hole.

Two coyotes and a hole in the hill! This meant a den and baby coyotes

SNOWY TAIL GROWS UP FAST

"Well," exclaimed Mammy White Tail. Snowy Tail turned round and there she was right behind the nest. She frightened him so he nearly jumped out of his skin. But it was only for a moment. As Mammy came around in front of the nest she said, "I was just coming home when I saw you hiding behind the tree. I saw the snake and the freg and old Crafty, and I could n't do a thing to help you. How I wished you were safe in the nest! Anyway, I'm glad there's one more snake done for. But what bothers me now is what I saw on the hillside. Did you see, Snowy?"

"Yes," said Snowy Tail, "there must be two coyotes instead of

"That's true," said Mammy, "and instead of getting away from Crafty we have made our new home right beside him. And what's worse, there must be some baby coyotes in the den. And old Crafty and Mother Crafty are on the lookout day and night to catch folks like you and me for baby food. That means you've got to watch every minute," said Mammy one living around here."

"But I'm getting bigger and stronger every day," said Snowy Tail. "Every morning I can run a little faster than the day before. I can take care of myself," he said, boastfully.

"This is just the time for you to be careful," said Mammy. She knew a little fellow like Snowy would take chances on doing things no grown-up jack rabbit would even think of. New-found quickness and speed and strength in a young jack rabbit often cost him his life. But Snowy Tail certainly was growing up fast. At the end of each week he seemed twice as big as the week before. He was far quicker, speedier, and stronger already than any ordinary blacktail at his age. There was not the least doubt about it. Mammy was glad, for almost always it's the strength and speed of a jack rabbit that saves him his life if an enemy finds him.

can run as fast as you, Mammy?" Snowy Tail said. "Some day we'll try a real race!" "That will come soon enough," said Mammy, "for every jack rabbit must run races for his life. The older we get the less we like them. But I'm sure you can take care of yourself when time comes." Mammy

"Won't it be splendid when I much lighter than a young blacktail's fur and much lighter in color than the usual young whitetail. And as Snowy Tail grew this difference in color Tail's light gray fur. It was made him a marked rabbit all through the valley.

One day Mammy said to Snowy Tail, "Snowy, I want you to be the speediest rabbit that ever lived in this valley, and I believe you will."

"I know I shall," Snowy Tail said, and he began to double and zigzag over the prairie after the fashion of young jack rabbits, but much faster.

The End.

