PHILADELPHIA

PUNKY DUNK, so fat, was a black and white cat
Of exceedingly tender years,
He had black on his nose and the tips of his toes,
On the end of his tail and his ears.

HE cast his lot in a very soft spot
For his bed was a box full of straw,
And he slept all night with his eyes shut tight
And his little black nose on his paw.

PUNKY Dunk would peep,
though he seemed asleep,
At the bird in its cage of brass,
And his tail he swayed when the gold fish played
In their clear little bowl of glass.

“THOUGH my coat's like silk from my drinking milk,” He would say, “I often wish I might change my food — as I think I should —
To a meal on a nice plump
fish.”

SO he winked his eye and he heaved a sigh,
And he said: “I really think That it would be grand to jump on that stand
And see how the fishes drink.”

THE fish globe round he reached with a bound And stood with his paws on the rim
Looking in with an air that was certain to scare
The fish as they looked at him.

HIS cunning head bent and his little nose went Right down, while his tongue flashed red—
When, O, what a sight! The fish in their fright
Splashed water all over his head.

AND Punky Dunk howled
and Punky Dunk yowled
And Punky Dunk fell to the floor,
And he bristled and spat like a terrified cat
As he fled through the dining room door.

IN the big glass bowl, when the waves ceased to roll
All the little gold fish were so glad That each wiggled his fins as he said through his grins:
"That's the most fun we ever have had."

NOW Punky Dunk lies on the floor and he sighs: "It is best for a cat to be good, For I cannot forget how I got my coat wet When I didn't do just as I should."

FACTS ABOUT THE VOLLAND EDITION OF MOTHER GOOSE.

"No, no, my melodies will never die, While nurses sing, or babies cry."

The most authentic edition of Mother Goose since Mother Goose Melodies were published in Paris in the year 1697.

One Hundred and Eight full page illustrations, remarkably faithful reproductions of the famous original paintings by Frederick Richardson. In design the illustrations are correct and wholesome; and in color, simplicity, humor and imagination they are a most unusual delight.

In an authoritative foreword Eulalie Osgood Grover tells the true story of Mother Goose and her rhymes. These rhymes have power to arouse children to eagerness and attention; and they train the ear and stir the imagination as no other verses do. Many poets and writers trace their first inspiration and love of literary things to Mother Goose.

Every child, every parent, every teacher and every artist will find value and charm in the Volland edition of Mother Goose. In addition, the book is made practical for hard everyday use; it is strongly bound in blue dealm. This substantial cover is made attractive with colored inlay and gold-leaf letters. Price, $2.00.
